

Flowering Trees

Cassia fistula L. (Caesalpiaceae) is a medium sized tree which is highly ornamental when in flower, producing bright yellow flowers in long pendulous bunches in summer months. The bark is used in dyeing and tanning. The root bark, seeds and leaves are used as a laxative. The fruits are cathartic and are applied in rheumatism and snake-bite.