

Flowering Trees

Colvillea racemosa Boj. (Colville's glory) of Leguminosae is a medium size deciduous tree with a thin coppery bark and slender feathery canopy. Leaves are twice compound bearing many leaflets. Flowers are fiery orange-red and produced on long drooping inflorescence. Stamens are longer than the corolla and are exserted. Fruit is a cylindrical pod.

Colvillea is cultivated as an ornamental tree.