

Flowering Trees

Albizia amara (Roxb.) Boivin, the Oil Cake Tree of Mimosaceae is a medium- to large-size deciduous tree with spreading branches and a crown that is dense when in leafy state. The bark is brown and characteristically fissured. Leaves are alternate, twice compound and bear several small leaflets. Flowers are small and aggregate into compact head inflorescence. Stamens with long filament project out from the flowers. Pod is flat and brown when dry.
