

Dirac and his precision-seeking character

Pauli and Dirac were once riding a a train together. To try to break the silence, Pauli pointed out the window and commented on some sheep he saw: “It looks like the sheep have been freshly shorn.” To which, having also examined the sheep outside, Dirac replied: “At least on this side.”

