The Nobel Prize in Physics 2022 was awarded jointly to (from left to right) Alain Aspect, John F. Clauser and Anton Zeilinger “for experiments with entangled photons, establishing the violation of Bell inequalities and pioneering quantum information science.”